Satterfield promoted to vice president of Public Affairs

He assumes responsibilities of retiring VP Williamson

WAUKESHA, Wis. – The ATC board of directors elected Randy Satterfield vice president of Public Affairs effective Jan. 1, 2008. He is assuming the responsibilities of Mark Williamson, vice president of Major Projects, who announced last week he will retire at the end of 2007. As vice president of Public Affairs, Satterfield will oversee State Regulatory Relations, Real Estate, Environmental, Local Relations and Corporate Communications.

Satterfield has been director of Regulatory and Governmental Relations for ATC since December 2006. He joined ATC in 2003 as director of Communications. Previously, he was senior account manager for Wood Communications Group in Madison. Prior to Wood, Randy served as an assistant director in the Bureau of Consumer Protection at the Federal Trade Commission in Washington D.C. He has extensive experience in communications, advertising, political consulting and international public relations. He holds undergraduate degrees in philosophy and political science from Marquette University.

“Randy has developed a broad knowledge of our business and industry, and the issues impacting us,” said José Delgado, president and chief executive officer. “He has applied strategic thinking, collaboration within and outside our company, and an aptitude to achieve results that have helped ATC be successful. We are pleased to have Randy in this new role within our corporate leadership team.”

ATC owns, plans, constructs, operates, maintains and will expand its transmission facilities to provide adequate and reliable transmission of power. ATC provides nondiscriminatory service to all customers, supporting effective competition in energy markets without favoring any market participant. A member of the Midwest ISO, ATC owns approximately 9,100 miles of transmission lines and 480 substations with a total investment of $1.8 billion in facilities in portions of Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota and Illinois.
